

THE CASE FOR SUPPORT

FROM SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA TO A NATIONAL MOVEMENT

THE CHALLENGE

For talented male gymnasts, high school graduation can abruptly end years of training. Many colleges do not sponsor men's gymnastics, forcing athletes to choose between the school that fits their future and the sport they have spent years mastering.

THE SC UNITED MODEL

SC United removes the single-school barrier. Athletes attend different colleges, train through partner gyms, and compete together as one collegiate team through GymACT — keeping education first and the competitive pathway open.

PROOF THE MODEL WORKS

More than a decade of operation has produced All-America and Academic All-America recognition and national-level competition. In 2026, SC United shared the GymACT Commissioner's Cup national championship with the Rocky Mountain Mavericks.

A PATHWAY THAT SPREAD NATIONWIDE

SC United helped pioneer the independent collegiate-team concept. That model is now represented nationwide through GymACT, giving more athletes a path to collegiate gymnastics without requiring a traditional varsity program at their individual school.
